Holiday Festival of Lights Kicks off its 30th year

Awards presented to the Giant Greeting Card Competition Winners – School Art Contest

[JAMES ISLAND] – The Holiday Festival of Lights kicked off its 30th season Nov. 15! During the grand opening celebration, the Charleston County Park and Recreation Commission (CCPRC) proudly presented awards for the festival's annual Giant Greeting Card Competition. Winning entries in this school art competition are on display during the event, which runs nightly through Dec. 31 at James Island County Park.

This year, the Giant Greeting Card Competition has 33 entries on display from Charleston, Berkeley and Dorchester County student groups in elementary, middle and high school divisions. The winning top three schools in each division, and four honorable mention winners, received a trophy and cash award to use for their school arts program. All entries are on display in Santa's Village. CCPRC is pleased to recognize the efforts and creativity of the winning schools:
